Building an IT environment that matches end-user needs for productivity; that is what our assessments aim to do. We have partnered with Lakeside to perform discovery of the current end user environment including hardware and software inventory and performance characteristics.

The SysTrack Assessment gathers in-depth information about your current hardware and software and its configuration. It also discovers how users are using their existing computing environment, by analysing their real-world software, web and network usage patterns. This helps target the most valuable use cases and validate the right solution to fit your end-users specific needs.

Digital Experience Monitoring

- Understand the health of your organisation by monitoring and analysing end users' interactions with technologies and processes.

IT Asset Optimisation

- Fit technology and costs to the productivity needs of end users.

Artificial Intelligence for IT Operations

- Solve IT problems affecting productivity quickly or even before they impact users.

Designing a Better Workspace

By providing insights into the usage and performance of resources and services at the endpoint, SysTrack empowers organizations to design the systems, policies, and procedures that make up the ideal work environment for their employees.
